TEACHER 'MOVES' FOR READING COMPREHENSION INSTRUCTION ADAPTED FROM RELC SEMINAR 2014

DR. RITA SILVER DR. JESSIE PNG MS GALYNA KOGUT MS HUYNH THI CANH DIEN MS RASLINDA A. R.

PURPOSE

To consider ways in which teachers can handle classroom interaction during reading comprehension lessons to

- move the conversation forward
- move students toward passage understanding while reading
- teach students reading processes which move them toward more effective, independent reading comprehension

SILVER, ET AL, 2014

BACKGROUND

Whole-class teaching as most prevalent teaching strategy at primary level in Singapore

- Whole class teaching + worksheet = checking comprehension. We should be teaching comprehension!
- Teaching comprehension = helping students understand a text while reading AND showing them how to read effectively through demonstration and action.

HANDLING CLASSROOM INTERACTION

One way to handle classroom interaction with texts is through 'Teacher moves'

- 1. Marking: highlighting key ideas, concepts, vocabulary
- 2. Turning-back: directing or redirecting student attention
 - a) to text
 - b) to student(s) comment/question: same student, different student
- 3. Revoicing: reformulating, restating
- 4. Modelling: demonstration
- 5. Annotating: fill in gaps in information
- 6. Recapping: summarizing

Based on Beck & McKeown (2006)

SILVER. ET AL. 2014

HANDLING CLASSROOM INTERACTION

Teacher moves

1. Marking: highlighting key ideas, concepts, vocabulary

- Turning-back: directing or redirecting student attention
- a) to text
- b) to student(s) comment/question: same student, different student
- 3. Revoicing: reformulating, restating
- 4. Modelling: demonstration/think-aloud
- 5. Annotating: fill in gaps in information
- 6. Recapping: summarizing

Timing

- 1. Reactive
- 2. Reactive

- 3. Reactive
- 4. Pre-emptive or Reactive
- 5. Pre-emptive or Reactive
- 6. Pre-emptive & Reactive

SILVER. ET AL. 2014

Teacher moves are part of the larger reading comprehension instructional strategy Questioning the Author (Beck & McKeown, 2006).

OVERVIEW OF QUESTIONING THE AUTHOR (QTA)

Developed by McKeown, Beck & Worthy (1993)

Designed to encourage students to

- think beyond the words on the page
- consider the author's intent
- consider author success at communicating ideas and intentions

(Jones, R., 2007)

Allows students to collaborate and negotiate for meaning as they read the text.

RATIONALE FOR QTA

Text content is merely a collection of ideas written down by the author

Ideas might be unclear or incomplete

'Fallibility of the author' might make text less intimidating to readers

Beck & McKeown, 2002, p. 44

SILVER, ET AL, 2014 Education Research Funding Programme, National Institute of

RATIONALE FOR QTA

Lead students to use QtA process when reading independently:

"... pause occasionally during reading, ask themselves what is going on, consider what they have read, reread sections as needed, consider what connects to what and whether it all makes sense."

Beck & McKeown, 2002, p. 120

Source: Dr Rita Elaine Silver, Projects OER 29/08 RS, OER 09/10 RS, OER 40/12 RS funded by the Education Research Funding Programme, National Institute of Education (NIE), Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. Adapted by Knowledge Mobilisation Unit, Office of Education Research, NIE, 2017. This resource may be reproduced for educational and non-commercial purposes only. If you wish to adapt or reproduce this resource, please contact Dr Rita Elaine Silver: rita.silver@nie.edu.sg.

PRACTICE 1

With the handout, 'RELC 2014 handout.pdf.

- Part 1: read the transcript and the moves we have marked for you
- Part 2: working with a partner, identify the 'teacher moves' in the 2nd part of the transcript

Before you start, here is some background on the passage and the teaching strategy.

SILVER, ET AL, 2014

BACKGROUND ON THE PASSAGE

The book is entitled Stop Thief! By David Hill

Jade is a young girl who just got caught trying to steal a calculator from a shop.

Yellow highlight in the handout shows 'teacher moves'. Information in the right hand column identifies the type of 'teacher move'.

Teacher moves are part of the larger reading comprehension instructional strategy Questioning the Author (Beck & McKeown, 2006).

Source: Dr Rita Elaine Silver, Projects OER 29/08 RS, OER 09/10 RS, OER 40/12 RS funded by the Education Research Funding Programme, National Institute of Education (NIE), Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. Adapted by Knowledge Mobilisation Unit, Office of Education Research, NIE, 2017. This resource may be reproduced for educational and non-commercial purposes only. If you wish to adapt or reproduce this resource, please contact Dr Rita Elaine Silver: rita.silver@nie.edu.sg.

NOW YOU TRY IT!

With the handout

- Part 1: read the transcript and the moves we have marked for you
- Part 2: working with a partner, identify moves in the 2nd part of the transcript
- Finally: check your answers against our model answers and discuss with your group

SILVER, ET AL, 2014

Reading is an active mental process, not a passive one of simply receiving information. ... text itself is not perfectly created, completed message but a source of information designed to be interacted with by the reader.... The reader must connect and integrate information as she or he proceeds through a text

Beck & McKeown, 2006, p. 21

SILVER. ET AL. 2014

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This presentation refers to research conducted with funding from the Office of Educational Research, National Institute of Education, Singapore. We thank them for the support. We also thank the participating school, teachers and students who participated in our research.

The views expressed in this paper are the authors' and do not necessarily represent the views of NIE or participating teachers.

Source: Dr Rita Elaine Silver, Projects OER 29/08 RS, OER 09/10 RS, OER 40/12 RS funded by the Education Research Funding Programme, National Institute of Education (NIE), Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. Adapted by Knowledge Mobilisation Unit, Office of Education Research, NIE, 2017. This resource may be reproduced for educational and non-commercial purposes only. If you wish to adapt or reproduce this resource, please contact Dr Rita Elaine Silver: rita.silver@nie.edu.sg.

REFERENCES

- Beck, I. L., & McKeown, M. G. (2002). Questioning the Author: Making sense of social studies. Educational Leadership, 60(3), 44-47.
- Beck, I. L., & McKeown, M. G. (2006). Improving comprehension with Questioning the Author: A fresh and expanded view of a powerful approach. New York: Scholastic Inc.
- Jones, R.C. (2007). Strategies for Reading Comprehension: Questioning the Author. Retrieved May 19, 2010 from www.readingquest.org/strat/qta.html.
- McKeown, M. G., Beck, I. L. & Worthy, J. (1993). Grappling with text ideas: Questioning the author. The Reading Teacher, 46 (7): 560-566.

Source: Dr Rita Elaine Silver, Projects OER 29/08 RS, OER 09/10 RS, OER 40/12 RS funded by the Education Research Funding Programme, National Institute of Education (NIE), Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. Adapted by Knowledge Mobilisation Unit, Office of Education Research, NIE, 2017. This resource may be reproduced for educational and non-commercial purposes only. If you wish to adapt or reproduce this resource, please contact Dr Rita Elaine Silver: rita.silver@nie.edu.sg.